London for New York, was estimated today to have been $250,000. It was said that the British battle-ship brought over not only the $250,000 in gold and securities for New York, but also a shipment of gold dust for Canada, whose treasury recently sent gold amounting to $135,000 to New York.

J. P. Morgan and company of this city were the consignees. The purpose of the transfer of the gold was understood to be to reinforce British credit here and to improve the exchange situation as the British pound sterling has depreciated of late.

ENTER THE LAW—EXIT MR. M'KEE

Enforcement Officers Finally Prove Too Much for Notorious Bootlegger

The way of the bootlegger is hard. Traps and pitfalls exist on every hand for his downfall. But the eye of the law is keen, heavily speckled, at least, and fortunate is that wary dispenser of spirits who gets through the "season" without interference. Numerous and diverse are the methods employed by the officers to catch the wise ones, for those who are not wise fall into the hands of the police as easily as leaves fall from a tree. Here is the way one Sam M'Kee, long watched by the police, finally met his Waterloo late Tuesday night.

Chief Nichols and his allies were watching a house in the 300 block of West Third street. Six men came out of the place with barrels, steps, and their guns and finding their change. The leader of the bandits enters the quiet place, and carries the landlady.

"Well," says the landlady, "you haven't got any thing on me so far."

"But hold," replies the representative of the law. "Here are six men and they tell different tales. The woman is waiting on us with the old grog bottle, and we'll all shoot down to the street."

And then the woman goes berserk and begins to threaten the name of her wholesaler, providing clue is left in peace. So the officers attack around her and she calls in Mr. M'Kee.

"I want two dozen bottles right away," she orders sweetly, and hands up the revolver.

Ten minutes later both city and county officers are entering the domain of Mr. M'Kee. At the little blue house in the bottom south of the city, Mr. M'Kee is looking the two down into his lungs, along with several other small orders which he has received. He is very indignant, and harsh words are necessary before Mr. M'Kee will allow the invaders to come near him. Finally Mr. M'Kee goes into the house to get his coat. An officer goes with him and renounces the two large revolvers which are hung inside the garment. A loaded shotgun standing conveniently in a corner is also confiscated and Mr. M'Kee is forced hastily into the waiting police car.

A survey of the barn results in a woman owned by the leader of the allies enter the dump floor of the structure. What a trap floor. Dozens of orderly stacked bottles toward the glittering eyes of the officer. Then the investigation of other out buildings to begin and plenty of every size and description are inventoried.

Three orange buildings, burning for blood, count the three most conspicuous places. These three on three glob heads are necessary to put the finishing touch on the warehouse place. The sector lies in the city jail, in the fault of $2000 bond. With the catching of M'Kee and his band, the police believe that they have caught the "big game" they have been looking for since spring.

Important men seldom accomplish anything of great importance.

APPEALING TO SUPREME COURT

Attack on Insurance Law Likely Will Be Carried to Highest Court in Land

ATTORNEYS for the Insurance company of North America, which was defeated in its first skirmish with the state insurance department in its attack against the new insurance law, known as House Bill No. 70, have appealed to the supreme court of the state.

More than fifty of the big underwriting companies, which have been doing business in the state, have sent telegrams to the North American's attorneys authorizing the use of their names in connection with the suit against the state. If necessary, and it is intimated that the case may be taken to the United States supreme court in case of an adverse decision by the high court of the state. Bills for such an appeal were held in the original petition, which sets up that certain provisions in the state insurance law are in violation of the federal constitution and that other provisions operating to prevent competition are in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

MEXICAN TROOPS INVADE TEXAS

Intended to break the stable interference in Mexican affairs was rapidly availed.

In a letter to Secretary Lansing, Arredondo expresses surprise that a Pan-American conference had undertaken to devise a plan for the partition of Mexico and says reports to that effect "have caused the constitutional government to feel justly alarmed." He declares he has been instructed by Carranza to communicate with the secretary on the subject.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11. Secretaries Lansing and Wood. The Latin-American diplomats who gathered here today to discuss plans for the restoration of peace in Mexico, that the United States is sending battleships to Vera Cruz intended only to afford protection to foreigners and furnish them a place of refuge.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 11.—Forty or fifty Mexicans were in a running fight this afternoon about 12 miles from Harlingen, with a detachment of soldiers reinforced by a 4th reg't of Texas. These same Mexicans were seen earlier in the day trotting their horses westward toward Mercedes. There were about forty of them.

ATTORNEYS TO HELP FRANKLIN

He did not know what action will be taken, but personally he favors an effort to induce the governor to relent and permit the work in the clerk's office to go on.

The work in the supreme court clerk's office has increased greatly during the past few months and the attorneys are interested in having it go on without delay.

It is likely that a committee will be appointed at the meeting of the bar association to call on Governor Williams and present the case to him from the standpoint of the legal fraternity.

"It is not our intention to stir up any more trouble," said one of the attorneys who is interested in getting a full attendance at the bar meeting Saturday morning. "Far be it from us to do anything of that kind. We want peace, and we want to know what has been done in the supreme court just as quickly as the work can be turned out of the clerk's office for us."

In the department of Vilna preparatory to an expedition, as reported from Petrograd the situation is somewhat puzzling to British commentators, inasmuch as the Russians assert they have repulsed German attacks around the fortress of Kovno, which is sixty miles north of Vilna.

2-Hour Sale

From 9 to 11

$5.00 to $7.50 Dresses for Only $1.00

Two Hours 9 TO 11

Sounds erroneous, doesn't it? $5.00 to $7.50 Dresses at only $1.00. Nevertheless it is true. It may also be truthfully said this two-hour sale tomorrow is the most sensational dress sale Oklahoma has ever known. Not sensational from the standpoint $5.00 to $7.50 dresses are being offered at $1.00, as this in all probability has happened before in merchandising. But based on the fact every dress is a 1915 style and not two or three seasons old, verifies our statement that this $1.00 dress sale surpasses any ever attempted in Oklahoma City.

Cool, dainty summer dresses of fancy voile, novelty striped Voile, French crepe and fine batiste. Beautifully made and trimmed in the latest effects.

On sale two hours only tomorrow, starting at 9 o'clock, $5.00 to $7.50 Dresses, your choice $1.00.
